Earn a Course Certificate

A Course Certificate is an official Coursera credential that confirms that you successfully completed a course on Coursera. You can see all the Course Certificates you've earned on your Accomplishments page. Certificates are provided as downloadable PDF files, which you can print yourself. You can also share them electronically.

If you would like to receive a grade and complete all of the assignments for this course, including quizzes, then you will need to purchase a course certificate. This course is also part of the Applied Kalman Filtering Specialization – a specialization certificate is also available to learners who complete all courses in the specialization.

A Course Certificate includes:

- The course name
- The instructor's signature
- The University of Colorado Colorado Springs logo
- A verification URL that allows others to check the Certificate's authenticity
- A statement that Coursera has confirmed the identity of the learner who completed the course

A Course Certificate does not include:

- Academic credit from the University of Colorado Colorado Springs
- The final grade you got in the course
- A printed or mailed copy of the Course Certificate

Certificate Requirements

In order to get a Course Certificate, you must:

- Complete a Verification Profile, which includes submitting a photo and verified ID
- Pass all required assignments in the course
- Verify your identity when you submit assignments in the course
- Pay the Course Certificate fee, or apply and be approved for Coursera Financial Aid

You can pay the Course Certificate fee when you enroll in the course. You can also see some course materials and assignments for free and upgrade to the Certificate option later.

If you're having trouble paying for a Certificate, or want to learn more about Coursera's payment and refund policies, check our Payments section on learner support.

For more information about Coursera Certificates, go to Coursera Learner Support.
