

Speed Dating: less than 17% matches

2/10

Context:

Participants took a survey about who they are, their interests, what they look for in the opposite sex and their opinion on what the others look for. Around 8,350 speed « dates » were organized between them. For each of them, they were asked to rate the other and how the « date » was and if they would like to see the other again.

Finding:

No more than 17% of speed « dates » have led to a real date.

Opportunity:

As a speed dating company, we would like to use all the collected information to improve this rate and make our customers happier.
