

Week 2 Introduction

Mean, Variance and Standard Deviation

Development

Environment: Jupyter Notebooks

Computing Basic Statistics in Python

Video: 2.5 Variables
4 min

Practice Quiz: Variables – Review Information
2 questions

Reading: Python Style Guide
10 min

Video: 2.6 Lists
4 min

Practice Quiz: Lists – Review Information
3 questions

Video: 2.7 Computing the Mean
3 min

Practice Quiz: Computing the Mean – Review Information
1 question

Video: 2.8 Better Lists: NumPy
3 min

Practice Quiz: Better Lists – Review Information
2 questions

Reading: Numpy and Array Creation
20 min

Video: 2.9 Computing the Standard Deviation
6 min

Practice Quiz: Computing the Standard Deviation – Review Information

Numpy and Array Creation

NumPy lets you create arrays in all kinds of different ways.

Here is a link to the NumPy documentation about array creation.

Experiment with some of the intrinsic array creators such as np.arange\(\), which allow you to generate sets of numbers automatically, rather than having to type them in. Useful for testing out stats and plotting.

✓ Complete

Go to next item

